True Potential Goldman Sachs Income Builder

30 September 2026

Fund objective

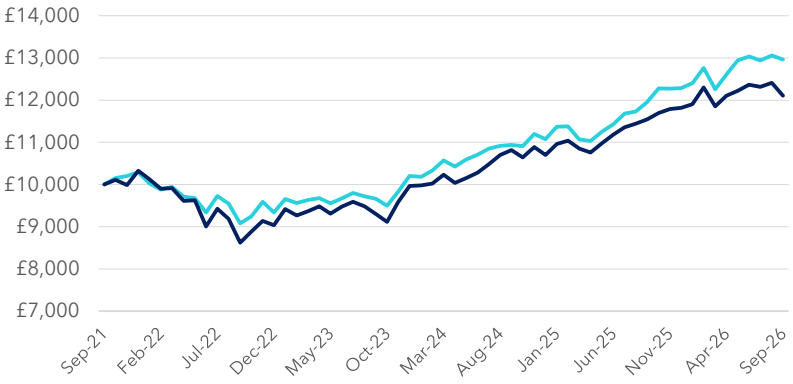

The Fund aims to provide income (paid monthly), whilst offering the potential for growth. The fund also aims to achieve its objectives with a lower volatility (a measure of the size of short term changes in the value of an investment) than the MSCI World Index.

September Update

Global equities declined in September as higher oil prices led to renewed inflationary concerns. Emerging Market (EM) equities edged lower yet outpaced their developed market counterparts, supported by gains in Taiwan and South Korea. In developed markets, Japanese and US technology shares outperformed, while European equities proved a laggard. In fixed income, global government bonds declined as yields rose. Elsewhere, gold prices ended notably lower amid a stronger US dollar.

The True Potential Goldman Sachs Income Builder Fund returned -2.45% (net of fees). The Fund's underexposure to equities and a sizeable allocation to high-yield (HY) bonds weighed on returns, as HY underperformed over the month. The preference for high-dividend-yield style shares also proved a hindrance as they lagged the broader market. At the stock level, the key detractors included home improvement retailer Home Depot, building materials supplier CRH Group and fast-food restaurant chain McDonald's. Conversely, energy giant Shell, Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company and intelligent power management group Eaton Corporation were among the most notable contributors. In fixed income, the Fund's allocation to global HY bonds detracted, as did the exposure to EM debt via the Goldman Sachs Emerging Markets Debt Local Portfolio and Goldman Sachs Emerging Markets Debt Portfolio.

Risks

The following are some of the key risks associated with investing in this Fund. For a complete list of risks, please refer to the Fund's prospectus, available at www.truepotential.co.uk/fund-documents. Please be aware that there is no guarantee that capital will be preserved.

Risk type	Description
Performance Risk	Investment objectives express an intended result but there is no guarantee that such a result will be achieved. Depending on market conditions and the macro-economic environment, certain investment types and styles may perform better than others and investment objectives may become more difficult to achieve.
Counterparty Risk	There may be cases where the organisation from which we buy a derivative, or an asset, fails to meet its obligations. The Fund's cash deposits are also subject to counterparty risk.
Derivative Risk	The Fund is entitled to use derivatives. Derivatives may not achieve their intended purpose. Their prices may move up or down significantly over relatively short periods of time which may result in losses greater than the amount paid.
Operational Risk	The Fund faces non-market risk, relating to purchasing, holding and servicing the Fund's assets.
Credit Risk	Where the Fund invests in bonds, there is a risk the bond issuer may fail to meet its repayments. Changes in interest rates, inflation and the creditworthiness of the bond issuer may also affect the bond's market value. This risk is particularly relevant where the fund invests in bonds with a lower credit rating.
Exchange Rate Risk	The Fund may invest in securities not denominated in GBP. The value of your investments may be affected by changes in currency exchange rates.
Liquidity Risk	Certain market conditions could make sufficiently liquid assets difficult to sell quickly at a fair price. This could result in an unpredictable fall in the value, and overall liquidity of the Fund.
